The fashion! The friendships! The fun, fresh story lines! As the long-awaited sequel starts filming, Us has the 411 BY ERICKA SÓUTER

FASTEN YOUR MANOLO Blahniks! On September 1, Sarah Jessica Parker ignited a Big Apple frenzy when she slipped back into Carrie Bradshaw's stilettos for the hotly anticipated Sex and the City movie sequel (due May 28, 2010). Set to shoot for 75 days in Manhattan, Morocco and Monaco, the fab four — Parker, 44, Kim Cattrall, 53, Kristin Davis, 44, and Cynthia Nixon, 43 — “are so happy and excited to get back together,” Davis tells Us. And, to be sure, so are the fans: The first big-screen installment, based on the HBO series that ran from 1998 to 2004, had the best R-rated comedy opening ever and grossed a staggering $415 million worldwide. Says Davis, “The first movie was all pent-up things we hadn’t finished in the show. Now, we’re just starting fresh, in a way. It’s a new adventure!” Indeed, costar Willie Garson (who plays Carrie’s gay BFF, Stanford Blatch) promises Us “fun, fun, fun! It’s a celebration and, once again, it truly is for the audience.” Want to know more, Sex addicts? Us answers your burning questions.

What will the sequel be about?

Expect SATC 2 to tackle familiar territory — man trouble, shopping and a woman’s right to sleep around — but with new twists. (Warning: Spoilers ahead!)
